Market Commentary:

Dear Investors,

With the current events, USD has been surging and remains one of the most strongest currencies of this year.

It would be good to wait a pullback on the USD pair before we make a move again to accumulate even more.

The focus now will be to observe if it's a shortlived rally or a sustainable one that will last well into the end of year.

In other news, the European Central Bank's stance on not raising rates till September will see the EUR depreciating rapidly but as with such moves, any shift in stance will be seen as radical and spark a rally in the EUR.
